Copyright Law of the United States—Title 17, United States Code

This law governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted materials. Under the conditions of the law, libraries are authorized to furnish photocopies or reproductions of copyrighted materials. By law, copyrighted materials may not be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship, or research." If an ILL user makes a request and later uses a photocopy or reproduction for purposes other than those described as fair use, the user may be liable for copyright infringement. Title 17 and ALA guidelines on fair use specify the number of requests that can be made each year from a particular journal title. All CCC Libraries reserves the right to refuse a request for copies or reproductions of copyrighted material if, in the judgment of the staff, fulfillment of the request would violate the copyright laws.
