News You Can Use
February 2019
Carter G. Woodson Library of Malcolm X College

February is Black History month and the anniversary of the assassination of Malcolm Visit the Library book display to commemorate this.

The American Archive of Public Broadcasting announced on February 6 that special collection of raw interviews from American Experience's 'The Abolitionists' in now available for viewing at no charge. This collection comprises of 51 raw interviews used in preparing the three-part American Experience miniseries The Abolitionists, which originally aired on PBS in 2013 The series follows the lives of prominent abolitionists including Frederick Douglass, John Brown, Angelina Grimké, William Lloyd Garrison, and Harriet Beecher Stowe, and explores differing and often conflicting approaches to abolishing slavery in the United States. The mini-series episodes are availiabl from the Internet Archive.   Link to the videos.   Link to the full announcement.

Featured Database of the Month

Consumer Health Complete is a full-text consumer health oriented database. It is part of the EbscoHost family of databases and shares the same interface. The focus is to foster an overall understanding of health-related topics with content in all areas of health and wellness such as aging, cancer, alcohol, pharmaceuticals, chronic diseases, diet, nutrition, and more.   Even though Consumer Health Complete is designed to support the information needs of patients, and their families, there are plenty of articles, books, and visuals for our students and faculty. The database indexes about 500 periodicals and 200 books. Access Consumer Health Complete through the list of library databases on the library home page.

Bookmark the Library Home Page http://ccc.edu/mxlibrary.   This is the por to all of our services. The page includes links to the CCC library catalog, subscription databases, public databases and portals, instructional PowerPoint presentations, library information documents, electronic library exhibits, and library forms. The system will ask for your CCC ID and password if needed.

Visit the Library electronic exhibits http://www.ccc.edu/colleges/malcolm-x/departments/Pages/Library-system-Exhibits.aspx . These videos complement the Library book exhibi

The Library is gathering materials to show off faculty achievements. We have a page accessed vi the Library home page (http://ccc.edu/mxlibrary). Articles may be in any discipline and do need to be related to what you teach. This is an ongoing project, please send full articles in Word or PDF format and/or links throughout the year directly to Daniel Stuhlman (dstuhlman@ccc.edu) in the Library.