This guide will give you step by step directions for searching the Literature Resource Center database to find scholarly literary criticism. Literature Resource Center contains literary analysis for thousands of literary works. It contains scholarly articles that contain authoritative information.

Finding Literary Criticism in Literature Resource Center

- Go to the Wright College Library page at wright.ccc.edu/library.

- The Wright College Library page will load.

- Click the Find Articles link under Start your research.

- A new page will load with a list of the library’s databases. Click on the Literature Resource Center link in the list of databases.
• The database will open in a new window. Enter your keywords in the search box provided.

What is a keyword?
A keyword is a term or phrase related to the topic you are researching. To develop keywords, think of the core ideas of your topic.

• Click the check box next to peer-reviewed publications to find scholarly literary criticism, and click Search.

What is a scholarly or peer reviewed article?
Scholarly or peer-reviewed articles are written by experts in academic or professional fields. They are excellent sources for finding out what has been studied or researched on a topic.
• Results will load. There will be several tabs you can choose from including: literature criticism, biographies, topic & work overviews, reviews & news, primary sources & literary works, and multimedia.

• In your results under Literature Criticism you will see Critical Essay listed on the right for some of the articles. These articles are literary criticism.

• Click the linked title of the article to open it.

• On the right side is the Tools menu, which contains print and email links.
• Click the View PDF pages link to open a copy of the original article. Note: The PDF version is the best version to use when citing an article from the library’s databases. In your in-text citation you can include the page number that you found your quote, ideas, or information.
