Chicago is home to some of the most unique and legendary buildings in the world; each of these buildings are the result of the collaboration of thousands of workers in the construction field. From those using the latest CAD technologies to design and engineer the blueprints, to those managing the construction projects and installing necessary amenities such as heating, ventilation and plumbing, all contribute to the industry, creating structures that generations will walk through. If you have an interest in learning more about the construction process, from planning to completion, you should consider the field of Construction Technology and Drafting.
