

Paul Castillo

B.A. in Psychology from University of Illinois at Chicago
M.Ed. in Educational Leadership from DePaul University

What's the best thing about being a College Advisor: I enjoy being a college advisor as I am able to guide a student through their educational journey and help them get one step closer to their goals. Advising has become a passion of mine where I am able to see a student grow into the professional they are working to become. I love building relationships with students and seeing them succeed. My objective is to continue making a difference in the lives of students.

Advice: Students, use the services offered here at Harold Washington College. If you do not know something, ask. Challenge yourself so you can grow as not only a student, but also as a professional. Make it a point to get involved. You get what you put in. The more you put in, the more you will get from your college experience.