Nephrology Renal Technology Dialysis Training Program Description

Nephrology is a branch of Medicine that deals with the kidneys, the organs that filter the body's blood of excess fluids and wastes. When kidney failure occurs the patient needs dialysis to clear toxic wastes and excess water from the body. The Nephrology Renal Technology Program teaches and trains students to become Hemodialysis Technicians/Technologists.

The Malcolm X College Nephrology Renal Technology Dialysis Training Program is a BONENT approved. Graduates from the Program carry the title of Nephrology Technician/ Technologist and are eligible for Board of Nephrology Examiners Certification Examination. Currently the program has affiliation with VA Edward Hines Hospital, DaVita Inc and DSI Holding Inc, for Dialysis Clinical training. The program also has partnership with The National Kidney Foundation of Illinois for Community Health Screening. Malcolm X College Nephrology Renal Program also offers an Advance Certificate in Renal Dialysis Technology. Students who receive this certificate are qualified for jobs as dialysis technicians.

The two Tracks of the Program:

1. Advance Certificate: Can be obtained on successful completion of one year of study which includes theory, lab training to operate a dialysis machines and Clinical rotation to learn dialysis at a dialysis center or hospital. The student is also required to maintain a good standing by fulfilling the program competencies and obtaining a "C" grade or above in all the core and general education courses.
2. Associate in Applied Science Degree: The two year degree program prepares the students for more advance positions in the field as well as the ability to negotiate higher salaries. The student will get the AAS degree on successful completion of two year of study which includes theory, lab training to operate a dialysis machines and Clinical rotation to learn dialysis at a dialysis center or hospital. The student is also required to maintain a good standing by fulfilling the program competencies and obtaining a "C" grade or above in all the core and general education courses.
