

Call for Editors

As a student literary magazine, we invite you to consider contributing to City Brink by becoming an editor. If you are interested in becoming an editor for City Brink, please consider the following expectations. You can send an e-mail to either jdockery1@ccc.edu or jthusat@ccc.edu with “Student Editor Applicant” in the subject line.

As a student editor, you will...

- be available to meet at least twice during the semester to discuss the progress of the magazine (though more meetings may be requested).
- meet with students (and student organizations) to solicit submissions and publicize the magazine.
- help create flyers and/or necessary brochures.
- possibly work with us to improve our online presence, including the publication of City Brink on the Internet.
- edit submissions, especially in August and September.

We are uniquely interested in students with computer design skills with ideas for progressing the magazine’s appearance online.
